Johnny Hallyday was "a part of ourselves, a part of France," said President Emmanuel Macron in his eulogy on the steps of the church of the Madeleine. The invitation to a "popular tribute" was issued by the President of the Republic shortly after the death of the singer, on the night of Tuesday 5 to Wednesday, December 6, at the age of 74 and after a career of nearly sixty years, 79 albums and more than 3,000 concerts. Departing from the funeral home of Mount Valerian, the funeral procession descended the Champs-Elysees around noon before moving slowly towards the church of the Madeleine, where a mass then took place. Not far away, the name of Johnny Hallyday was posted in red letters on the pediment of Olympia, a room where he had played 265 times since 1961. The religious ceremony was punctuated by musical interludes performed by Yarol Poupaud, Matthew Chedid, Robin Le Mesurier and Yodelice. The City of Paris was associated with the tribute by displaying "Thank you Johnny" on the Eiffel Tower. The funeral of the singer will take place Monday on the island of St. Barthelemy in the West Indies. Source Afp, Le Monde
